Dear Recruiter:

May 13, 2003

Having just initiated a job search, I am seeking to leverage your assistance in the process. My career is marked by successive promotion to positions of greater scope and responsibility in both business and technology management. I have distinguished myself in each position by producing tangible results such as growing new accounts with million dollar plus sales to international clients, successful delivery of extremely complex IT projects, building profitable professional services practices, and the design, development, and management of products for the consumer, and small business markets. My areas of strength encompass:

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| * Executive & Senior Management Leadership | * Internet Development |
| * Business Development | * Technical Solution Oversight |
| * Product Development & Management | * Human Factors Engineering |
| * Program, Project, & Solution Delivery Management | * Training & Professional Development |

Though I enjoy my IT-related work with the LuminaGroup and have delivered outstanding results there, I recently reached the decision to explore additional opportunities elsewhere. While I certainly would be interested in Executive Level Leadership or Senior Management opportunities in firms that provide Professional Services, I want to remain flexible as to industry, title of position, and areas of responsibility. Given the nature of my background and the versatility of my skills, I could fit into any number of industries in a variety of capacities with an emphasis on IT (Information Technology) and PD (Product Development). Example industries include:

- | | | |
|--------------------------|-------------------------|----------------------------|
| * Communications & Media | * Internet & e-Business | * Services and Outsourcing |
| * Government IT | * High Technology | * Consumer Products |

I have worked in Start-ups as well as Established Companies with responsibilities in a number of functional areas, including:

Product Development & Management * Marketing & Sales * Operations * Business Development * IT

I excel in fast-paced, results-oriented, challenging environments and thrive in situations requiring energy, drive, and attention to detail. I am an honest person and hard worker of the highest integrity. I have excellent customer skills and am enthusiastic and passionate about providing solutions that meet their needs. Some ways that I could contribute to an organization include:

- ◆ Delivering architecturally sound software solutions on time, within budget, and designed to customer needs
- ◆ Ensuring customer-centric solutions are easy-to-use, well designed, and competitive in the marketplace
- ◆ Providing organizations with executive leadership that requires both business acumen and technological savvy
- ◆ Developing products and services throughout the lifecycle – from idea conception to lifecycle management
- ◆ Leading and managing teams in technical, operations, marketing and sales, product and business development
- ◆ Developing innovative training, professional development, and knowledge management programs
- ◆ Monetizing web sites using e-Commerce business development techniques for consumer and business markets
- ◆ Building strategic alliances internally and with vendors for business development or solution delivery
- ◆ Chartering teams to go after new accounts with innovative business and service offering strategies
- ◆ Instituting marketing strategies for product development and market expansion
- ◆ Creating web site solutions and sales and marketing collateral, including trade show presentations
- ◆ Chartering teams to go after new accounts with innovative business and service offering strategies
- ◆ And more...

Regarding the geographical parameters of my search, while I would prefer to focus my campaign on opportunities in Colombo. If you need additional information, please call me. I would appreciate the opportunity to talk with you further about how my skills could meet your clients' needs. Thank you for your assistance in my confidential search for new employment.

Sincerely,

Manoj Ranasinghe
